Full House Bulldog '81

Queen City High School Queen City, Texas Volume 32

Queen City Independent School District began the 1980-81 school year with a full house — full and overflowing.

Three bond elections have been held in recent years to enlarge the existing facilities, and three times the issues have been turned down at the polls.

In the meantime, three portable buildings have been built on the high school campus to house the overflow of students.

Moreover, the erection of more portable buildings is planned before another school year begins.

Halls are congested between classes, restrooms are crowded, students often spend half of their lunch period waiting in the cafeteria line to get their food, due to so many students eating in limited facilities.

Therefore, the staff has chosen "Full House" for the theme of this year's annual. All the photography, art work, writing, and layout has been done by the Bulldog '81 staff — while working in the midst of our "Full House."

It's a honor to be recognized as Best Student in the District

Annual Staff

The Annual Staff is in charge of planning, funding and producing the entire yearbook. The work begins in September with ad sales and continues through graduation in May.

During the year, the staff members take pictures for the book, the design and lay out each individual page, do all the book's art work and also sell the books.

In August of each year the completed project arrives from the publisher — making the entire year's work worthwhile.

AFTERWARD

In March 1981, a fourth bond election was held. This one passed. It provides for the construction of a new elementary school, renovation of the old elementary to house the junior high, and expanding high school facilities to fill the present junior high and high school. This work is to be completed by the beginning of the 1982-83 school year. Even though we are still living and working in our "Full House," relief is in sight.

Lyn Farless Has Varied Background

By MONICA POLK AND BILLIE JO WISE

Rebecca, Woodlawn, Woods, Spring Branch and might sound like a common name. Hank Snow's hit "I've been here" is actually it. Mrs. Farless, who is employed as the QC Elementary PE teacher, lives in Vivian. They have one daughter, Kasia, who is a sophomore at QCHS. As a family, they enjoy doing church work.

English II, typing and shorthand. Asked what she liked best about QC, Mrs. Farless replied, "I think it's cooperative." Her only complaint is the overcrowded conditions. Crawford On Leave

By CARA CAVER

Diaper pens, baby bottles, formula and the sickening smell of amonias at 1 a.m. is what Debra Crawford has to look forward to sometime in November.

Last Friday was the last day for Crawford to teach English classes at Queen City High School until Jan. 5, due to her maternity leave.

"While I'm gone I'll be doing some last minute shopping and sleeping," the awaiting mother said.

While Crawford is absent, Rex Reynolds, pastor of the Tanglewood Baptist Church of Atlanta, will be substituting for her.

The faculty threw a surprise party for her Thursday afternoon.

Student Council Discusses Signs In Wednesday Meeting

By BILLIE JO WISE

Signs dominated the topics of business in the QC Student Council meeting Wednesday.

The school board proposed that signs be constructed by the student council and put by the main road showing the direction to the Queen City Elementary School and High School. The supplies will be furnished and the council will be responsible for the painting and lettering.

Also discussed was the forming of committees to change the signs lettering in front of the school which displays dominate weekly events. A rotating system was decided upon which involves two student council members who choose two from the student body to help.

Another area of business was that of paying for half the student council officers meals at the student cafe in Linden Tuesday.

Suggestions to be voted on in the next meeting are those of setting a regular time for student council meetings and the construction of a weekly event calendar suggested by the faculty.

Student council sponsor is John Sirmans.
