There were a lot of changes this year. And one big change that students had to get adjusted to was the closed campus for the first time.

Campus was closed on November 26 and lunches were divided into first and second.

Students had to get used to standing in long lunchroom and snack bar lines for awhile, but after a few weeks things were like we never got to leave in the first place.

≡ Spanish Club ≡

Spanish was offered at QCHS this year after several year's absence. There were enough students to sign up to make two classes which were taught by Donna Bird.

The Spanish Club was formed to more fully acquaint students with the Spanish language and culture. The club sponsored an entry in the homecoming parade of wagons; members also enjoyed a Spanish meal at El Chicos in Texarkana.

Many of this year's members will be moving to Spanish II next year.

Public School Systems Get Back To Basics

By LAURA NICKERSON

Texas public school systems are taking an about face and getting back to basics this year as a result of House Bill 246 and House Bill 72.

House Bill 246, also referred to as after 75, is a new curriculum that put all Texas public schools, for the first time, in a uniform system. The bill was passed 3 years ago and is now implemented this year.

Under Chapter 75, beginning with this year's ninth graders, students will have to decide whether to take the advanced or regular route towards graduation.

In the regular program students are required to take 4 years of English, 3 years of math, 2 years of science, 1 year of economics and have a total of 21 credits to graduate.

In the advanced program, in addition to the required courses in the regular program, students have to have another year in either math or science, a year of computer, 2 years of foreign language, 2 years of fine arts and a total of 22 credits to graduate.

Although many parts of Chapter 75 deal mainly with this year's ninth grade and the grades below, many things affect this year's 10th through 12th grade students.

For example, this year teachers have a list of objectives for every subject taught. These are statewide and known as essential elements. These essential elements must be taught by the teachers and the students must master each one to receive credit in the course.

Also, starting this year students who miss more than 10 unexcused days, 5 days per semester, will not receive credit in the classes they miss.

Another thing Chapter 75 has done to make the public schools in Texas uniform is to develop a statewide grading system. From 90-100 is an A; from 80-89 is a B; from 70-79 is a C; and below 70 is failing. There is no longer a D.

The regular or advanced program, the essential elements, the absence restrictions and the new grading system are the main points covered in House Bill 246.

House Bill 72, which was passed this summer in a special session of the Texas Legislature, deals more with the professional side of school but also puts a few more restrictions on students in addition to the ones in House Bill 246.

In the special session this summer, called by Governor Mark White, Ross Perot, a self-made millionaire businessman from Texas, was the main person pushing for House Bill 72 to be passed.

Gov. White appointed Ross Perot as head of the Texas Education Committee in September of 1983. The committee's major purpose was to study Texas public education and suggest improvements that needed to be made.

Many of the things the committee suggested were adopted in House Bill 72.

One of the areas discussed in the bill was teachers' salaries. It created a career ladder that all Texas schools will have. The main purpose of the career ladder is to reward the better teachers with more money.

Another area covered in the bill was the reinforcement of the absence policy in House Bill 246, but House Bill 72 went into more detail. It states that students can only miss 5 days a semester for extracurricular activities. After the 5 days are used, the student cannot miss anymore class time to attend extracurricular activities.

Starting in January, students that are failing at least one subject cannot participate in any extracurricular activity for a period of 6 weeks, or until the next reporting period.

Also, as required by House Bill 72, students will no longer have exemptions and starting with this year's ninth graders, students will have to pass a competency test to graduate.

One other change that House Bill 72 made was the abolition of an "elected" statewide school board. It will now be replaced by a statewide school board that is to be appointed by the governor.

This appointed school board will rule over the University Interscholastic League, which has, until now, governed itself.

Luke Nickerson, high school principal, said that both bills are a new beginning for schools in Texas.

"Now," Nickerson said, "administrators, teachers, parents and students are all responsible for children receiving a first-class education."

Parking Lot Regulations Cause Inconvenience For Students, Teachers

Queen City school officials have made a rule as part of the parking lot regulations that students must leave the parking lot after they park their cars. When they leave campus at lunch they must go to their cars and leave.

This ruling hurts students who do not abuse their parking lot privileges, but like to stay in the area to talk to friends. It also hurts students who go out to the area to get away from the crowd that gathers in the lunchroom and around the picnic tables at lunch.

The parking area includes the paved area with designated spaces and the dirt area between the wood-working shop and the ag shop. This is a large area that students must stay clear of and that a teacher must watch.

There is no real reason for students to hang around but they should be allowed to stop to talk to friends.

Some students do flirt with the parking lot rules by sitting with the car door open or bending other rules as James McCormack, supervisor of the parking lot, said. But by enforcing the rules, it would eliminate the problem without clearing the whole area.

By having the students stay away from the area it would reduce the possibility of an accident, but none have happened on campus and students stay clear of cars that are driving in the parking lot.

We feel that the school officials should reconsider this rule because of the inconvenience it will cause for students who drive to school and those who don't, as well as the teachers who have to supervise the parking lot.

New Teaching Methods

By HENRI JO VELEKEI

Luke Nickerson, high school principal, has put into effect, along with approximately 20 other principals through East and Northeast Texas, "a new pilot program, or method of teaching."

The program was put into effect at the beginning of the 1984-85 school year and is in a trial level at present. According to Nickerson, it might be a law in the future.

"The program," Nickerson said, "primarily is a list of steps the teacher must go by to teach and if necessary, reteach, the essential elements."

The essential elements are a list of objective, or goals, that by law, must be taught. If they aren't mastered by the students the teacher must reteach until they are mastered.

Before the teacher enters the classroom, he or she must identify objectives that are to be taught, being the essential elements.

Next, the teacher must state the objectives clearly for the purpose of the teacher, student or anyone who might need to know them.

Now, when the teacher enters the classroom he or she must re-state the objectives to the students and focus in on the first objective to be taught. They do this by explaining and modeling exactly what they want the students to do. An example of explaining and modeling would be a step-by-step procedure explained while worked on the blackboard.

After the objectives have been thoroughly explained, guided practice starts. This means that the student shows the teacher he or she knows exactly what is to be learned with teacher supervision. An example of this is student board work in class.

Individual practice is started after guided practice. Individual practice means homework. The student does the work himself.

Next comes evaluation or testing of the objective. This is to check for mastery or to prove to the teacher the student has learned the objective.

If the student proves mastery, the teacher goes to enrichment, or challenge, to further teach the objective. Enrichment is "only" for those students who prove mastery.

If the student does not prove mastery, he or she must be re-taught. If after reteaching and reteaching the student still does not master the objective, the responsibility is left to the parent. And for those students, a tutorial system has been provided. It is not mandatory for the student to go, but is there if the parent thinks it is necessary.

After mastery has been proven, the process is in the conclusion stage. This is an in-depth evaluation, or major test.

And then back to step one, until all objectives have been taught.

"All good teachers have always done this," Nickerson said, "but not this specifically."

"The plan itself is not a law but the essential elements are," Nickerson said. "The pilot program is just a way to teach them."

Neither the elementary or the junior have started the pilot program.

"The program is not mandatory yet," Nickerson said, "but I wanted to get a headstart on a system I thought was a good idea."

Briefs

FCA Sets Meeting

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA) will meet Monday, Sept. 10, in a library at 6:30 p.m. The organization is open to all students and faculty members. Those interested should contact Coach Maxie Hays.

ACT Deadline Set

The first registration deadline for the American College Test (ACT) is today, Sept. 28. The test is scheduled to be taken Oct. 27. All seniors, juniors and qualified sophomores interested should contact John Sirmans, high school counselor.

FFA Buys Turkeys

Members of the Future Farmers of America (FFA) purchased commercial turkeys from Temple Wednesday.

Sept. 5. The 50 turkeys will be distributed between seniors Jeff Schwindt and Mike Richards and sophomores Steve Collier and Ricky George.

The four best turkeys from each student will be chosen for competition in the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo. A total of 16 birds will be taken to competition.

Huddle Group To Meet

The huddle group will meet on Wednesday, Sept. 12, at noon in the gym. Everyone is invited to attend. The meeting will be held in sponsor Donna Bird's room.

SC Meeting Planned

A student council meeting will be held Tuesday, Sept. 11, during lunch. The meeting will be held in sponsor Donna Bird's room.

Is This Study Hall?

By KAREN REARDON

Due to a new state law, supervised study hall has become a new alternative at QC.

"Other schools that haven't abused this procedure have had great success," Principal Luke Nickerson said. "I think it will work very well here, too."

In supervised study hall, the students are isolated from the student body and any other regular student activities.

"When students see that they're going to have to work continuously and be isolated, it's going to be a real eye opener," Nickerson said.

Teachers will make daily assignments to be completed within the day, and at least a week will be spent in the study hall.

A 5-minute restroom break will be given in the morning and afternoon. A student may bring his lunch or be served in the cafeteria at different times than the other students.

If any rules are violated, the school has no other choice than to suspend the student.
